Description
Students study migrations movements of the XIX and XX century to extract conclusions on the reasons and consequences of migratory movements.
On the third meeting of the project, students may focus on the role of migrations in present time.

Preparation
Students study about the major migration movements in Spain in their history classes. They debate which ones they want to focus on for their investigation.

Summary of Tasks/actions
Students are given a template to produce a poster which movement will summarize a chosen movement. They present the posters to the class so the whole group gets the information about the different movements. During the 1st Erasmus+ meeting in Igualada an exhibition will be organized to share, compare and extract global information about migration movements in Europe.
Just before the Waltrop meeting, students will have to focus on migration in the present and an expert will be coming to school and will be giving them a talk on how complex is for an immigrant or a refugee to be able to get citizenship in Spain.

Assignment
The investigation on the chosen movement, the cooperative elaboration of the poster, the presentations of the poster and the exhibition in the "migration gallery"

Materials / Equipment/resources
History course book Teacher provided different options to create the posters: ● We gave them some clear instructions in a rubric which worked as a checklist. This is one sample used during the preparation for the 3rd meeting in Waltrop. ● An expert came to school gave them a talk on how complex is for an immigrant or a refugee to be able to get citizenship in Spain.
